

What it does: DI Briefs are written market briefings for /NQ and /ES futures: a morning brief before the open, a recap after the close and a Sunday prep for the week. Each one covers what moved, why it matters, what's scheduled, the scenarios and the key levels.

The free Monday morning brief, October 26, 2026: the audio player, the situation summary and the /ES, /NQ, VIX, oil and 10-year tiles. Shown for illustration only.

NEW TO THE BRIEFS

Read a brief at a glance

Every brief keeps the same order on the page and in the PDF, and the audio reads the main sections in that order; a section with nothing new is kept brief or left out.

Situation	Where /NQ stands and why, with the latest /ES, /NQ, VIX, oil and 10-year prices.
Prior call	How the last brief's line in the sand played out, checked on 5-minute bars.
Base case	The main read for the session: the level that matters most, and what would change the read.
What happened / Why it matters	The news and moves since the last brief, how they connect to /NQ, with dated links to the sources.
What's next	What's on the clock: economic data, Fed speakers, auctions and earnings, with times in ET.
Scenarios / ES Check	How the session may open, three setups each with a price trigger, an invalidation and a probability, /NQ levels on a ladder, then how /ES compares.

When the briefs arrive

Morning brief	Weekdays at about 7:00 AM ET, before the cash open: overnight news, key levels and the setup map.
Post-close recap	Weekdays at about 5:05 PM ET: what held or broke, how the morning's scenarios played out, and the overnight outlook.
Sunday prep	About 6:00 PM ET as Globex reopens: the week's data and earnings, weekly levels, the Monday open.
Monday brief	Every Monday morning brief is free to read, download and listen to. No account needed.

Each brief also comes as audio of about 6 to 8 minutes. Nothing is published on Saturdays.
